ILO Global Study on Partnerships for effective and efficient delivery of employment services and ALMPs

Michael Mwasikakata
Coordinator, Active Labour Market Policies and Employment Services Group, Employment and Labour Market Policies Branch, Employment Policy Department, ILO Geneva
Motivation

• Changes in the labour market – increasing recognition of the role of private employment agencies and other service providers

• The impact of the Global Crisis on PES

• The enabling normative framework for the operation and regulation of and collaboration with PrEAs (C88; C181)

• The emergence of non-standard forms of employment

• The capacity of PES vs niche role of PrEAs

• In developing countries -collaboration the most feasible model?
What the study is about

• Aims at documenting current trends and good practices in different regions of the world—mainly developed and emerging countries—regarding what works in promoting appropriate and successful partnerships in the delivery of employment services and ALMPs.

• As a side objective the trends in the type of LMPs and the institutions of delivery (PES, PrEAs, other service providers)
Specific Objectives of the Study

• To provide an overview of the policy and regulatory environment within which employment services are provided and partnerships operate;

• To provide an overview of the application of Convention 181 with regard to protection of workers in partnerships;

• To describe in detail the nature of partnerships obtaining in the countries of the study as well as comparator countries;

• To take stock of what works and lessons learnt on what does not work under what circumstances;

• To develop good practice case studies and lessons learnt and their underlying success factors; and

• To develop policy briefs and guidance tools for policy advice
Components of the Study

• Country studies undertaken by national consultants: 5 countries, emerging and developed, less already available information, prospects of partnership, geographical coverage. (China, Colombia, India, Korea, and Russia)

• International Literature Review: to look at global trends, mainly in developed countries (OECD). Consultations with national and international organizations such as PES, WAPES, WEC, ENPES, etc.
Envisaged Final Products

• Five country studies

• One global literature review report

• One Synthesis report with cases studies

• Policy Brief on What Works in Partnerships for effective and efficient delivery of employment services and ALMPs

• Hoping for one dissemination event
How you can assist

• Identification of Partnerships that could be considered in the study
• Identification of key informants that could be consulted at national and international level
• Your ideas on key elements that you would like emphasized in the analysis of the study
• Availability for consultations by the consultant(s)
• Your inputs on the draft reports
• Any guidance would be welcome
Many thanks
