Introduction

In recent years, Europe has experienced the greatest mass movement of people since the Second World War.

More than 1 million refugees and migrants arrived in Europe.

The EU has agreed on a range of measures to deal with this crisis. These include trying to resolve the root causes of the crisis as well as greatly increasing aid to people in need of humanitarian assistance both inside and outside the EU.

Our countries are acting on different fronts: from reforming the asylum system to strengthening border security, making the return policy more efficient and promoting the integration of refugees.

This integration of refugees and asylum seekers needs quicker administrative procedures, swift access to basic pre-conditions (such as housing and healthcare) and to the labour market, facilitated recognition of foreign qualifications, as well as education and training.

This will not happen without considerable efforts.

All the institutions take care of this crucial topic:

The Mutual Learning Programme under the European Employment Strategy includes a range of activities to support, coordinate and encourage mutual learning between EU Member States. Within this framework the European Commission organizes events on the topic of integration and inclusion of refugees and asylum seekers.

In June 2016, the PES Network adopted Key Considerations on labour market integration of refugees with a presentation of interesting PES practices from Network members. The PES Network stresses the need for early work practice combining work and language training and for creating labour market 'fast tracks' for work-ready or highly skilled asylum seekers and refugees.

Our PESs are involved in this global process as key stakeholders and have important roles at the forefront of this challenge.

At the heart of the refugee crisis, Arbetsförmedlingen, the Swedish PES hosted a conference about this topic in collaboration with Germany and Austria.

Many best practices were presented and it's time now to review the situation, to analyze the actions, to discuss new ones with PES' representatives involved in this work.

It's the reason why NAV, the Norwegian Labour and Welfare Administration is delighted to organise this conference to share best practices with other Public Employment Services.

Conference structure

The conference will be focused on the themes of integration of refugees into the labour market. The aim is to give a good overview of today's refugee situation, discuss important elements in the integration process, as well as give insight and showcase measures into ways of dealing with this from a PES point of view.

The conference will run in plenary sessions throughout the two days.
